

The Alcoholic Family in Recovery: A Developmental Model Overview

	Substance Usage	Substance Usage	Abstinence	Early Recovery (3-5 Years)	Ongoing Recovery (5+ Years)
Home Environment	<ul> <li>Anxiety, tension, chaos</li> <li>Emphasis on control in a system that is out of control</li> <li>Unpredictable</li> <li>Hostility, anger, shame, guilt</li> <li>Chronic, acute trauma</li> </ul> Unsafe	<ul> <li>Intensification and escalation of problem.</li> <li>Out of control behavior</li> <li>Denial, rationalization, confusion</li> <li>Unsafe</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Beginning of "trauma of recovery"</li> <li>Identity confusion, chaos, crisis</li> <li>Fear of addict "on the wagon"</li> <li>Things get even worse</li> </ul> Unsafe	<ul> <li>Moving toward stability</li> <li>May still be chaotic</li> <li>Hope mixed with tension, anxiety</li> <li>Continuing "trauma of recovery"</li> <li>Moving from unsafe to safe</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Stable, predictable, consistent</li> <li>Not organized and dominated by crisis or trauma</li> <li>Supports abstinence</li> <li>Comfortable, secure</li> </ul>
Independent Development	Life based on maintaining pathological belief, behavior and affect necessary to maintain substance dependence     Sacrifice of individual development to preserve usage     "False self"	<ul> <li>Development sacrificed to preserve usage patterns</li> <li>Dominated by defenses against surrender/ acceptance of problem</li> <li>Cracks in denial</li> <li>Despair, defeat</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Shift to individual focus, which has priority over family system</li> <li>Shift to external help</li> <li>Attachment to recovery</li> <li>Time of intense dependency</li> <li>Feelings of depression, anxiety, abandonment, confusion, fear</li> <li>Dominance of impulse</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Focus shifts from the system to the individual "I am"</li> <li>Recovery, new identity, intense education</li> <li>Less dominated by impulse</li> <li>Still confusion, perhaps depression, anxiety</li> <li>Intense self-examination, self-development</li> </ul>	Stable individual recovery     Behavior, identity secure     Interpersonal focus: combine     "I" and "we"     Spiritual development     Shift from external control to internal (Higher Power)     Intense self-examination     Development through 12-step program, therapy or religion
Family Condition	Substance usage is the central organizing principle governing family system     Tight rigid boundaries, polarized and tense relations     Normal family developmental tasks arrested     Emphasis on short-term stability where usage is normalized     Double-bind: "We don't have a problem" + "Usage is necessary because"     The alcoholic is the "parent" and the others the "children"	<ul> <li>In state of collapse,</li> <li>"hitting bottom"</li> <li>Reactive</li> <li>Rigidity, confusion</li> <li>Things become threatened, fall apart</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Collapse of system</li> <li>Vacuum</li> <li>"Trauma of recovery"</li> <li>Shift to external focus and support.</li> <li>Children often left unattended, neglected.</li> <li>We want the system to totally collapse in order for the family to look outside the system for support (therapy, AA, religion etc.)</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>• Individuals enter recovery</li> <li>• Continued individual work via psychotherapy, 12-step programs, religion</li> <li>Healthy</li> <li>No follow-up after initial intervention →</li> </ul>	Stable, predictable, can deal with crises Less tension and major illness Can deal with reality All individuals continue to grow and bring much more to the family  Healthy  Family is "dry": while chaos is gone, prior conditions remain Defensive, rigid, lacking joy and spontaneity Outside influences avoided Little intimacy
